Legal issues to consider when holding events

This fact sheet covers:

- permits that your community organisation may need to obtain prior to holding an event
- what to think about when hiring a venue or equipment
- copyright, marketing and promotions, and other issues
- event insurance
- legal obligations around event safety
- providing accessible events and activities
- sponsorship for an event
- raising money – laws that regulate fundraising in the Northern Territory, and
- tax considerations concerning events

This fact sheet outlines some of the main legal issues that community organisations should consider when organising and holding an event in the Northern Territory.

This fact sheet does not specifically cover issues for events run outside of the Northern Territory, even if the organisation running the event is based in the Northern Territory. However, you will find many of the same legal issues will need to be considered if you are running an event in other jurisdictions.

This fact sheet is not intended to provide an exhaustive list of all issues that your organisation should consider. Your organisation may need to get specific legal and tax advice about its event plans and potential liability. This is general information and should not be used as a substitute for legal or tax advice. If you have a legal or tax issue, make sure you get advice.

Do we require permit(s) from the local council and other authorities for our event?

The permits or licences that your community organisation may need to obtain prior to holding an event (and for the duration of the event) will depend on:

- the type of event
• the activities to take place
• the facilities which will be provided to patrons and participants including any particular goods or services (such as food, alcohol, merchandise and gaming), and
• the particular requirements of the relevant local council and other authorities.

We recommend that you always check with your local council to see what council-specific licences or permits are needed, as well as contacting other relevant authorities for specific permits (eg. liquor licences from the Northern Territory Director-General of Licensing) you may require before running your event.

Events and activities which generally require permits or licences

Permits or licences are generally required for the following events and activities:
• holding an event on council or other public land
• setting up a temporary structure or using a venue for a purpose it is not designed for
• serving food to the public
• serving alcohol to the public (for more information see our Events involving alcohol fact sheet)
• playing live or recorded music
• displaying signs and banners
• community gaming
• setting up a market stall
• filming on council land
• providing access to St John Ambulance services
• participation in NT Companion Card Program
• using gas cylinders to cook or for other purposes
• using an open flame
• using fireworks, and
• using the footpath or closing a road.

This is not an exhaustive list and there may be other permits required for your event.

Ways to identify which permits may be needed

One way to identify local, state and federal permits, licences and registrations that are relevant to your event is to access the Australian Business Licence Information Service (ABLIS) at ablis.business.gov.au.
Although this website has been set up to help small businesses, it may be helpful for people involved in community organisations to work out some of the permits, licences or registrations your organisation may need. A link to the ABLIS has been provided above and included in the Resources section below.

Your community organisation may also want to contact the relevant local council(s) directly. Most councils have officers who can provide your organisation with information about permits, venue availability, public liability insurance requirements, selling food or alcohol and other issues associated with your event. This information may also be available on your local council’s website.

Depending on the type and size of your event, some local councils will also ask for a risk management plan, and often provide detailed event planning guides to help you through the process.

What should we think about when hiring a venue or equipment?

Your organisation should be aware that an agreement to hire a venue or equipment is usually a legally enforceable contract.

It is important to read the terms and conditions of the contract carefully and make sure your organisation can comply with these. In particular, your organisation should be aware of the terms and conditions relating to insurance, liability and indemnity for loss, damage or injury to a participant (see below), and your organisation’s obligations to repair or replace any damage to equipment or property.

You should also carefully consider your payment obligations under any contract and whether these will still apply if you need to postpone or cancel the event for any reason (such as not selling enough tickets). Please note that you may still have to comply with your payment obligations under a hire contract even if your event does not run. You should obtain legal advice if you do not understand the terms of a hire agreement, or it imposes significant financial obligations on your organisation. Similarly, you should seek specific legal advice if it becomes necessary to postpone or cancel your event.

Copyright, marketing and promotions

Playing live music, recorded music or music videos at an event

If you are planning to broadcast, communicate or publicly perform recorded music or music videos at your event, you will usually require two licences – one from music rights organisation APRA AMCOS, and one from the Phonographic Performance Company of Australia Limited (PPCA). These different licences reflect the fact that there are at least two copyrights in any one recording – the copyright in the song (licences available from APRA AMCOS), and the copyright in the recorded version of the musical work (licences available from PPCA).

PPCA is authorised by participating record labels to grant licences and to collect licence fees to play recorded music or music videos. You will need a licence if the playing of recorded music or music videos at your event is considered a ‘public performance’ (meaning, in a non-domestic environment). You may still require a licence even if the performance or the event is given for free, or the audience is small, or there is no admission fee, or the performance is confined to members of a club, or a limited area.

EXAMPLE

You will need to apply for a licence from PPCA if you plan to play recorded music at any of the following types of events:
- fetes, garden parties, school, church or dance academy concerts, and
- arts, fringe, food/wine, sporting, film and community festivals, as well as eisteddfods, exhibitions, fashion shows and similar events.

While PPCA provides licences covering the public performance of a recording and/or music video of the song (a particular recorded performance), and represents the interests of recording artists and record labels, you may also need to consider obtaining a licence from APRA AMCOS—APRA AMCOS provides licences covering the copyright in the song (lyrics, composition etc) and represents the interests of composers and publishers.

If you are planning to have live performances of music at your event, you will usually need a licence from APRA AMCOS.

NOTE

Note that a joint venture of APRA AMCOS and PPCA, called OneMusic Australia, is due to launch in the first half of 2019 and aims to simplify the process of acquiring a public performance music licence.

EXAMPLE

You will need to apply for a licence from APRA AMCOS if you plan any of the following for your event:
- music performed at events – for example promoted concerts, dance parties and other performances
- recorded music and live entertainment used during the course of a sporting event, or
- use of music (including copying print music for use by community orchestras, bands, choir), such as by churches, community bands, choirs, orchestras, eisteddfods, dance schools and other groups/organisations.
Marketing and promotions

Before marketing an event you should ensure that you have the necessary permissions if you are using photographs, videos and text created or owned by other people. This also includes using photographs, videos, music or text on online forums (for example, your website or blog) or via social media forums. You will need permission from the copyright owner for materials that have been created by someone else. Please refer to the Australian Copyright Council website (www.copyright.org.au) for information about when permission is required and how to request permission to use copyrighted works.

In addition, if you plan to take pictures or videos at your event and wish to use the images or film in a public forum, such as a website, brochure, newsletter, pamphlet or poster, you may need to seek permission from the people who appear in the content pursuant to privacy laws and/or the copyright owner. Seeking permission from the people often means obtaining signed release forms from the people who appear in any images or videos you collect. A release form should explain what you will be using the image or video for, and you should not use the image or video for any purpose other than that stated. Further, some councils require you to obtain a permit before the event if you plan to take pictures or videos at your event.

Other issues

The price paid for certain event tickets may have tax implications for your organisation (see Tax Considerations below).

For further information on advertising, including misleading and deceptive conduct, see our specific fact sheet on Advertising on the Not-for-profit Law website at www.nfplaw.org.au/advertising.

What about event insurance?

Getting your own insurance

As the organiser of an event, it is likely your community organisation will need to take out public liability insurance, particularly if your event is to be held on council or public land.

The owner of land or the venue you are wanting to hire will typically insist that your community organisation have public liability insurance of at least $10 million. You should check with your local council for further information. Some councils and other organisations will also ask you to list them in your policy as an 'interested party' and will request a copy of the policy before giving permission to hold your event.

CAUTION

Your organisation should not ignore requirements set out in lease agreements or permit conditions.
Additional insurances

There may be a range of other insurances that your organisation will be required to get or will need to consider:

- if you are selling food or other products to the public – product liability insurance
- if you are relying on volunteers to help you with the event – personal accident insurance
- if you are hiring employees to help you with the event – workers compensation insurance, and
- if you are hiring independent contractors – review the agreements that you have with your independent contractors. Such agreements should specify the insurance cover you need your independent contractors to have in place.

For more information about insurance, see our Risk and Insurance page.

What are our legal obligations around event safety?

Your organisation will have a legal obligation to make sure the event is safe. Your organisation owes this obligation to the people involved in organising the event (volunteers, employees, independent contractors) and anyone who comes to the event (e.g. members of the public).

Generally, organisers of an event will owe a duty of care (through the law of negligence) to participants in the event. Briefly, this means that an organisation must take reasonable precautions against any foreseeable risk of harm to individuals attending events. In determining liability, courts will assess whether your organisation should have reasonably foreseen that its activities and actions (or inaction) could have caused loss, damage or injury to a participant. These obligations extend beyond ‘accidents’ and include harm that is foreseeable due to poor food preparation and alcohol service.

The legal obligation to ensure the event is safe for people involved in organising the event may also arise under the Northern Territory’s work health and safety legislation (the Work Health and Safety (National Uniform Legislation) Act 2011 (NT)) which applies to community organisations and has a very broad definition of ‘workplace’ which may include the event location.

Your local council should be able to provide specific advice in relation to safety, security and emergency procedures applicable to your community organisation’s proposed event (and may require a safety plan to be put in place).

Depending on the nature of your event, you may need to ensure the safety of equipment, goods and persons. You may wish to consider whether you need to notify or organise for some groups to be at your event, including:

- the Northern Territory Police Force
- the Northern Territory Fire & Rescue Service or State Emergency Service
- an appropriately-qualified first aid provider, for example St John Ambulance NT
- private security, and/or
- the Northern Territory Worksafe Authority (NT WorkSafe).

NT WorkSafe has a number of tools your organisation can use to undertake a risk assessment of your proposed event – see the Resources section below.

Do we have to provide accessible events and activities?

Equal opportunity and anti-discrimination legislation applies in the Northern Territory. These laws may prohibit discrimination against certain people on the basis of a person’s impairment or disability, age, sex, sexuality, race, religious beliefs, status as a parent or carer, pregnancy or breastfeeding among many other attributes. Some exceptions to the laws apply.

In general, equal opportunity laws apply to prevent discrimination when providing goods and services to the public. They also apply in other circumstances (for example in employment, sporting activities, and membership of clubs).

Your organisation could be covered by these laws and should put in place reasonable measures to ensure that your event (and goods and services) are accessible to all people. Even if your organisation is not covered by these laws, it is best practice to do so.

See the Resources section below for further information on holding accessible events, including running events which are inclusive to people with hearing and/or vision impairments.

TIP

If you are charging an entry fee for your event, you can register for the Companion Card Program. This allows people with a disability requiring lifelong attendant care support from a companion to attend events and projects without having to pay for a second ticket for their companion.

TIP

Before planning an event check that the venue can reserve or allocate seating for people who use a wheelchair. Select accessible venues for individuals who may have physical disabilities such as hearing and sight limitations, and wheelchairs.
What about if we have sponsorship for the event?

If your community organisation is intending to share the cost of staging an event via sponsorship, it is recommended that you and your sponsor partner enter into a sponsorship agreement.

A sponsorship agreement will generally be a legally enforceable contract. Your organisation should be sure it can comply with the terms of the contract, especially if there are any conditions around sponsorship money (eg. any requirement that your organisation refund sponsorship money if you do not meet your obligations under the agreement or if the event is cancelled). If you have any concerns about a proposed sponsorship agreement you should seek legal advice.

Our event is to raise money - are there laws that regulate fundraising in the Northern Territory?

In the Northern Territory, there is no specific legislation governing fundraising. There are, however, laws which apply to fundraising activities that involve gambling. Licensing NT is the body responsible for the regulation of any fundraising which occurs through authorised games. There are three types of lotteries that may be run in the Northern Territory - foreign, community and trade lotteries. Community gambling activities include lotto, raffles, tipping competitions, Calcuttas, bingo, and sweepstakes. These activities are governed by the Gaming Control Act 1993 (NT) and the Community Gaming Regulations.

To run a lottery or raffle, your organisation will need to become an ‘Approved Association’. To become an Approved Association you will need to apply to the Director-General of Licensing. A link to the application form is listed below in the Resources section. Once approved, an organisation may operate raffles, free entry and minor trade lotteries, Calcuttas, sweepstakes, bingo, tipping competitions and other games without a permit provided that total ticket sales do not exceed $5000. Permits are required for larger lotteries for which total tickets sales exceed $5000.

What are our tax considerations concerning events?
Tax considerations may apply to fundraising at your event. You should note that donations and contributions are treated differently.

Tax deductible gifts

If you want donors to be able to give tax deductible gifts or donations at your events, you need to be endorsed as a deductible gift recipient (DGR) by the Australian Taxation Office. Certain requirements need to be met in order to become a DGR or to satisfy tax deductibility requirements for benefiting donors.

Goods and Services Tax (GST)

You may also be required to pay GST if you are selling tickets to your event. Generally, if you are registered for GST and you are selling tickets to a fundraising dinner or similar function in the course of your organisation’s activities, you must pay GST on the tickets you sell. However, you should seek specific tax advice in relation to this issue. There are GST concessions and rebates available to many charities and not-for-profits.

For further information see our specific fact sheet on Goods and Services Tax on the Not-for-profit Law website at www.nfplaw.org.au/GST.

Other issues

There are many other issues you may wish to consider when organising your event. The following is a non-exhaustive list:

Should we acknowledge traditional owners at our event?

An Acknowledgement of Country recognises that the Northern Territory has an ancient and proud Aboriginal history and complex ownership and land stewardship systems stretching back many thousands of years. It pays respect to the Traditional Owners.

An Acknowledgement of Country should be given at formal events, forums and functions such as conferences, events, concerts, Government and Local Government meetings and official openings. A guide as to how to give an Acknowledgement of Country is available on the Reconciliation Australia website and can be accessed from the link listed under the Resources section.

Local council

It is important to discuss your proposed event with the local council in order to find out the particular processes that might apply to the local council area including any formal approvals that might be required and any particular rules or regulations that may apply to the location in which you wish to hold your event.
Most councils will require applications to be submitted a minimum of 12 weeks prior to the event particularly for large events requiring road closures, fireworks and liquor licenses. Other events normally require a minimum of 6 weeks.

Disruption of roads

If your event will require the full or partial closure of any roads or otherwise disrupt road users you must obtain a permit from the local council in accordance with Regulation 38 of the Northern Territory Traffic Regulations. More than one permit may be required where more than one local council is involved. You are required to make the application not more than three months before and at least seven days before your event takes place. For further information see the Department of Transport Form VS_14.

You will also be required to obtain written consent from the Northern Territory Police. If your event is to be conducted on NT Government-controlled roads, you must also have a traffic management plan designed by a qualified NT traffic management plan designer.

Noise management

Managing noise at events using public open spaces is also an important consideration. Local councils may place restrictions on noise levels, as well as limits on use of amplification equipment with the event, unless written approval from the council has been obtained (eg. not to exceed 72dB when measured 3 metres from the sound source, or amplified sound must not start prior to, and must end by, certain times).

The NT Environment Protection Authority (NT EPA) is responsible for the assessment, management and regulation of noise issues and complaints under the Waste Management and Pollution Control Act (NT). Guidance about managing noise at events can be found in the Draft Northern Territory Noise Management Framework Guidelines. Excessive noise may constitute an environmental nuisance under the Act.

Noise from events is also subject to nuisance provisions of the Public and Environmental Health Act 2011 (NT). Residents may lodge a complaint that your event is adversely impacting on the amenity of the area and the local council may investigate and take action if they believe contraventions have occurred.

As an event organiser, you will need to consider the amenity of the surrounding area when running your event, including noise from music, broadcasts and amplified speeches, vehicles, event activities, lighting and patrons and then consider ways to mitigate potential disturbances of the neighbourhood.

Events with impact on public transport

If your event is likely to have an impact on public transport (eg. buses, ferries or trains), you should contact the Northern Territory Department of Infrastructure, Planning and Logistics. For your event, you may need to organise the provision of a special bus service. You should be aware that the Northern Territory Government has a policy of full cost recovery of any bus services provided for a special event. This means that the full cost of the service must be met by the person or organisation that is running the event.
Handbills

‘Handbills’ includes flyers, leaflets, brochures, place cards, notices, pamphlets, free newspapers or other printed materials. You may wish to distribute handbills prior to and at your event. You should check whether there are any specific requirements at your local council, including whether a specific permit is required or whether the handbill must contain any specific note (eg. “Do Not Litter” in readable font).

Water

The Northern Territory’s hot weather conditions make the provision of water at events or mass gatherings a very important issue. An adequate supply of water must always be available for drinking, fire fighting, hygiene purposes and for cooling patrons during events.

All licensed events in the NT need to provide free drinking water to patrons by law. For non-licensed activities, event organisers can decide whether to provide drinking water free of charge or at a reasonable cost.

For more information, see the Northern Territory Government webpage at https://nt.gov.au/industry/hospitality/water-public-events.

Toilets

Organisers should ensure there are an adequate number of toilet facilities available to attendees, based on the number of persons expected to attend. Where existing toilet facilities are inadequate for an event, additional portable units must be made available.

Toilet locations should be:

- well marked (including with appropriate signage where applicable)
- well lit (including the surrounding area) if night usage is expected
- serviced on a 24-hour basis (including pump-out of portables) or more frequently if required during the event (with vehicle access made available), and
- located a suitable distance from food storage and food service areas.

Where portable facilities are being provided, you should consider discussing these issues with a trusted supplier. Unisex toilet(s) will also need to be provided for people with access needs.
